Jeff Saitas, PE, has been a partner at the firm Saitas and Seales since 2002, assisting clients with regulatory, permitting and enforcement matters before federal and state regulatory agencies and the Texas Legislature, primarily in air pollution control, but also in water and waste matters. Prior to that, he worked with the TCEQ from 1989-1998, including as the Executive Director (1998-2002), Deputy Director of the Office of Air Quality (1995-98) Director of the New Source Review Division (1993-95). He holds an MS in Electrical Engineering from UT Texas, and a BS in Mechanical Engineering from Georgia Institute of Technology.

Latrice Babin, PhD, is the Director for Harris County Pollution Control Services Department which serves the third most populous county in the United States, with 4.7 million residents. She has been employed by Harris County for 24 years with experience ranging from a Field Investigator, Laboratory Chemist, Water Quality Permit Specialist for Pollution Control, then as the Environmental Toxicologist for the Environmental Public Health Division of Harris County Public Health and Environmental Services, and for Pollution Control Services Department as the Public Information Officer, Expert (Toxicologist) Witness, Special Project Manager, and Deputy Director prior to her appointment as Director. Dr. Babin is a graduate of Texas Southern University where she obtained her Bachelor of Science in Biology/ Chemistry in 1992 and her Doctorate in Environmental Toxicology in 2008, and serves on the Board of TAEP.